Weekly Reflections:

When times are difficult and we have to keep a careful eye on what we spend and how we use things, it can leave us feeling depressed and deprived. While it may be the "worst of times," it can also be the best. We are forced to consider what is important and to make conscious choices. Grabbing fast meals or getting pre-made dinners may be easy but they are expensive. Learning to cook at home and sitting down as a family for a meal has a lot to offer. Not only will the meals be healthier but we will have time to gather as a family and talk to each other. Consider how you can make your "worst of times" into a blest time where you discover what is really important in your life.

I believe that I shall see the bounty of the Lord in the land of the living.

-Psalm 27:13

Pastor's Rundown:

Some friends of mine were visiting from Washington DC last week and they were telling me about the huge amounts of snow that they had dumped on them. The cool thing that they were excited about were the bulbs for plants that they had planted in the spring. They are looking forward to the blooms coming through the snow and brightening things up! This whole thing reminds me of the season of Lent. This time of lent where we remove holy water, use the color purple for decoration, take out the flowers and leave out the alleluia during mass is like the period of winter snow. The season that we are really expecting is the Easter season. This can be compared to the flowers that are growing and going to bloom through to show new life. During Lent we, as Christians do all we can to melt the snow off of our lives so that the brightness of Christ's life can shine through. So maybe with that in mind we can look at lent as being the time period when we work to melt, shovel or remove the "snow" of our lives away so that we can witness the new life of Christ! We can do so by the warmth of positive connections with each other, service, and prayer. God bless all of you especially during Lent so that the cold can give way to the warmth of the love of God.
